It was a gorgeous day. The sun was streaming through the towering church windows as the sound of the violin accompanied Jamie and her father down the aisle. Tyler stood confidently awaiting them; the slightest hint of a grin evident. With all these two have been through together already, not even a finicky candle could dampen their excitement and spirit today. That spirit pulsed like an electric charge through the entire gathering of friends and family—and had everybody celebrating and dancing until the wee hours of the morning. A gorgeous day, indeed.
